

A Year With The Producers: An In-Depth Look at the Making of One of the Greatest Musicals Ever

The idea for The Producers came to Brooks in the early 1990s. He had been watching old black-and-white musicals on television and was struck by how funny they were. He thought that it would be great to do a musical about a Broadway producer who was trying to put on a flop.

Brooks began working on the show with Meehan in 1998. They spent several years developing the story and writing the songs. They also had to find the right cast for the show. They eventually cast Nathan Lane and Matthew Broderick in the lead roles.

The Producers began previews on Broadway in March 2001. The show was an immediate hit with audiences and critics. It opened to rave reviews and quickly became one of the most popular shows on Broadway.
