Talli had always been curious about her family's history, but she never really had the time to delve into it. Her parents had passed away when she was young, and she had no siblings or other close relatives to ask about her heritage.

One day, Talli was surprised to receive a letter in the mail from a genealogy company. The letter said that they had been able to trace her family tree back several generations and that they had found some interesting information.

Talli was excited to learn more about her family's past, so she decided to order the genealogy report. When she received the report, she was amazed to find out that she had ancestors from all over the world.

Talli's ancestors came from England, Ireland, Germany, France, and even Africa. She was surprised to learn that her family had such a diverse heritage.

Talli was also interested to learn about the occupations of her ancestors. She found out that her great-grandfather was a blacksmith, her great-grandmother was a seamstress, and her great-great-grandfather was a farmer.

Talli's ancestry surprise was a great opportunity for her to learn more about her family's history. She was grateful to the genealogy company for helping her to trace her family tree back several generations.

Talli's ancestry surprise also inspired her to do more research on her own. She started to read books about genealogy and she even took a few online courses.

Talli's research helped her to fill in some of the gaps in her family tree. She found out the names of her great-great-great-grandparents and she even found out where they lived.

Talli's ancestry surprise was a great way for her to connect with her family's past. She was grateful for the opportunity to learn more about her heritage and she was excited to continue her research in the future.
